

2nd quarter 2020 Lead Instructor CE Practical Instruction 071000E1220 3 CEUs

Match the appropriate equipment to prepare for each of these practical assessments:

- 1) ____ Cardiac a. Variety of sample medications, med administration sets, syringes
 - 2) ____ Pharmacology b. Laryngoscope, airway mannequins, OPA/NPA adjuncts, variety of ET tubes
 - 3) ____ Airway c. Cardiac monitor, rhythm generator, static cardiac strips
- 4) Practical evolutions give the student the opportunity to apply what they have learned in the:
- a. Cognitive portion of instruction
 - b. Affective portion of instruction
 - c. Both the cognitive and affective portion of instruction
- 5) (Choose 2) When setting up practical stations, use the topic objectives from the lecture to:
- a. Determine the number of stations
 - b. Determine if skills will be assessed hands on or orally
 - c. Find a way to mess with the students
 - d. Lecture topics are never considered when planning practicals
- 6) Why is it important to limit time at each practical instruction station?
- a. To keep the students interest
 - b. To promote the importance of time management in EMS
 - c. Keeps the facilitators from getting off track
 - d. Because time is money
- 7) When evaluating student competency it is important to remember that,
- a. All students learn the same
 - b. Students do not care how they are graded so long as they pass
 - c. Students should only be evaluated by a single facilitator
 - d. Not all students learn alike

- 8) When performing student remediation, keep the following in mind:
- a. Locate the disconnect between student and concept
 - b. Ask another mentor to assist
 - c. Remember that this is about students learning, not instructor pride
 - d. All of the above
- 9) Topics for practical instruction are dependent on the cognitive aspect of the class.
- a. True
 - b. False
- 10) Keep stations close to each other so students are well prepared to rotate
- a. True
 - b. False
- 11) An organized class is an efficient class.
- a. True
 - b. False
- 12) When performing psychomotor assessments it is important to provide a learning environment that is free from distraction.
- a. True
 - b. False